LYDIA'S QUORUM

By BELLE MANIATES

Copyright, 1905, by Belle Maniates

"Well, Lyddy, I'll get you the job if I can, but it's going to be a mighty hard thing to get a 'corum,'" Deacon Watrous was saying. "You see, that young Wight thinks we ought to have a man. Of course you'll have my vote, but Bill Stiles is always straddlin' a fence, and the last man he talks to gets him. This young feller's highfalutin talk kind of caught Bill's fancy, and he was totterin', but I took him in hand, and now he's leanin' our way again. I'll stick to him tighter than a brother and keep him away from Wight till the meetin' is over. it's tomorrow night."

"You are so good, Deacon Watrous," replied Lydia, raising grateful eyes, "and if I get the place I'll do my best to vindicate your choice."

"I'll do all I can, Lyddy," said the deacon.

Lydia Gardner had spent the past summer away from home, and when she returned to the farm she had found the family in a state of gloom. Crops had been poor, a number of cattle had died, and the inevitable mortgage had to be met. Lydia proposed to meet it by teaching in the district school. She had been reasonably certain of securing the position, counting on the deacon and Bill for a quorum, but now this young man, who had fallen heir to the farm of his uncle, John Wight, and had come to the Corners in her absence, might carry his point of hiring a man to teach.

She simply had to have the position, and she determined to help Deacon Watrous in his efforts to secure Bill's needed vote. It would be useless for her to appeal to Bill—"Weathercock Bill," as he was called. She resolved to make a bold move and encounter the enemy whom she had never seen.

Hugh Wight was in the sitting room of the old homestead pondering over this same subject of a quorum. When he succeeded to his inheritance he had determined to become a practical farmer and win the esteemed position his uncle had ever maintained in the hearts of the simple country folk. They had laughed at the young man for thinking he could be a farmer, but he had shown them he could learn from them and improve on their methods. They were glad to have him succeed his uncle as a member of the school committee. That seemed to be more in his line.

He had as firm convictions on the educational question as he had on most subjects, and he thought a man more fitted to wrestle with the difficulties of a country school than a woman. He had not seen this applicant, but he did not approve of a young girl who had no preparation or experience in teaching.

In the midst of his cogitations there was a rap at the outer door. He opened it to admit a winsome, willowy girl with big, innocent eyes and an artless manner.

"Are you Mr. Wight? I am Lydia Gardner."

He acknowledged the introduction gravely and asked her to be seated. Hugh Wight was not a susceptible man, and Lydia's beauty only strengthened him in his belief that she was not competent for the position of school-teacher at the Corners.

"I am, as you know," she said, "a candidate for the position of teacher. I hear that you are in favor of hiring a man for the place, and I don't suppose anything that I could say would change your opinion. I came to ask you not to induce Bill Stiles to vote against me."

He was somewhat surprised at this frank appeal. He liked directness.

"It means a good deal to us," she continued earnestly, "and if I don't get the place it will go very hard with my father. My salary would help him more than you can know."

Hugh felt as if he had been stealing sheep. She did not want the money for fripperies, then, but to help her father.

"What do you mean by my influencing Bill?" he asked.

"It's like this," she explained. "Deacon Watrous is of course for me, and Bill is, too, or would be, if you leave him alone and say nothing about the advantages of having a man, but the last person that approaches Bill has him, and they say you have a convincing tongue. The deacon is going to try and keep Bill away from you until the meeting is over, but I didn't care to trust to that, so I came to ask you. I wouldn't presume to ask you to vote for me, only to let Bill alone."

Up to this time the eyes, voice and manner of the young man had not been at all encouraging, but in the hearty peal of infectious laughter that followed her request Lydia caught a note of appreciation, and some way she derived hope from his amusement.

"Miss Gardner, it strikes me as rather odd that you should come and show me the way to gain my point and then ask me not to take it."

"Maybe it is," she said wistfully, "but I didn't know what else to do."

He remained in deep study for a moment. He did not like to be influenced by personalities.

"Well," he said abruptly, "I'll not speak to Bill or in his presence about this matter, and I'll waive my objections for this year and vote for you myself, though I still believe a man should have the place."

Two bright spots burned in Lydia's cheeks.

"Thank you. I will now have another incentive to do my best. I shall try to show you that I can fill the position as acceptably as a man. You look incredulous. They all said about here that you, a 'city chap,' could never make a farmer, but you showed them you could. I'll show you I can make a teacher."

Having made this telling point, Lydia took her departure. Immediately the housekeeper came in and expressed her approval of Wight's concession.

"Lyddy's a smart gal, and for all her purty looks and baby way she's got a heap of grit. Pity her pa didn't have it. He used to be a professor, and he's eddicated Lyddy to use good speech."

At the meeting the next night Lydia received a unanimous vote, and when school opened she was installed as teacher. She made companions of the big boys and girls and pets of the little ones. The country people were perfectly satisfied. In due course of time Deacon Watrous and Bill Stiles came to make the accustomed visit. Lydia was fully prepared for this occasion and invited them to question the class. They knew but a few questions to ask, and as they had paid many visits to the school the pupils knew the answers by heart. Then Lydia asked them to sing a stirring war song and a hymn. Bill's little girl spoke a piece, carefully rehearsed beforehand. The two members went away enthusiastic over the new teacher and told Wight he had better go and see for himself.

And he did, appearing suddenly and unexpectedly near the close of an Indian summer afternoon. Lydia's expression of dismay caused a titter of appreciation among the older boys. Instead of a reprimand she gave them an imploring look that could not be withstood, and order reigned at once. Lydia felt that the visitor had noted the look and interpreted it as a confession of inability to govern.

Just as she was about to call upon the school for a song little Bob Hanks let loose a mouse he had carefully confined in his book bag. Excitement prevailed among the girls and delight among the boys. Had Lydia known that she was to lose her position she would still have done as she did now, jumped up on her chair.

Hugh caught the mouse, threw it out of the window, ejected Bob and his book bag and in stentorian tone restored order. Lydia came down from her chair and in her confusion called upon the arithmetic class to come forward. She wished that Lige Jenkins had remained at home that day. Arithmetic was not his forte. She planned adroitly to omit him, but the visitor instantly detected the omission and pounced upon the unfortunate lad.

"Lige," he asked, "how many times does 9 go in 27?"

To Lydia's dismay Lige promptly stepped to the blackboard and commenced a solution via long division, finally putting down 2 for an answer.

"Try again, Lige," urged Wight cheerfully.

Lige then substituted the figure 4 for 2.

"You've got another guess coming, Lige."

The boy looked bewildered, and Lydia desperately came to his rescue.

"Lige, won't it go three times?" she asked insinuatingly.

Lige looked at her axiously.

"Why, yes," he replied slowly, "it will, but it's a dern'd tight squeeze!"

Then came that delightful unconstrained burst of laughter that Lydia had heard once before from Hugh Wight. The school joined with him. The teacher looked at the clock and thankfully observed it was time for dismissal. She stood at the door until the last scholar had vanished. Then she came back to the platform, where Wight still sat and Lige lingered.

"Say," observed the lad earnestly, "t'ain't her fault. I never did know nuthin' about 'rithmetic nohow. She's the best teacher we ever had."

This touch of sympathy from the little champion was too much for Lydia. Her self control slipped, and her head went down on the desk.

"Lige," said Wight gently, "you did better than I expected. There are lots of things in life more desirable than a knowledge of the science of numbers. Take this dime and go down to the Corners and see what it will buy."

The boy sped happily away. Lydia raised her head. A little gleam of anger and defiance flashed through the tears.

"You can send and get a man teacher as soon as you want to. I am glad I am not a man."

"So am I, Lydia," he said heartily, with such earnestness of voice and eyes that the slender hand of the schoolteacher went up in a pathetic little way to her eyes.

"I am your 'quorum,' you know," he said whimsically, but with the new softness still in his voice, "and I didn't come to inspect the school nor the scholars, but to take the teacher driving. Will she go?"

Her hands came quickly down from her eyes, whose dimness was melting away in a glow of pleasure.

"Yes," she replied, "I will go."

The New England Kitchen.

There is a kind of sentiment about the kitchen in New England—a kind of sentiment not provoked by other rooms. Here the farmer drops in to spend a few minutes when he comes back from the barn or field on an errand. Here in the great, clean sweet, comfortable place, the busy housewife lives, sometimes rocking the cradle, sometimes opening and shutting the oven door, sometimes stirring the pot, darning stockings, paring vegetables or mixing goodies in a yellow bowl. The children sit on the steps, stringing beans, shelling peas or hulling berries, the cat sleeps on the floor near the wood box and the visitor feels exiled if he stays in sitting room or parlor, for here, where the mother is always busy, is the heart of the farmhouse.—Century.

Horace Greeley and an Autograph.

In his "Recollections of a Busy Life" Horace Greeley tells the story of how he once dealt very effectively with a persistent autograph hunter. A gushing youth wrote to Greeley as follows:

Dear Sir—Among your literary treasures you have doubtless preserved several autographs of our country's late lamented poet, Edgar Allan Poe. If so, and you can spare one, please inclose it to me and receive the thanks of yours truly. ——.

To which Greeley replied:

Dear Sir—Among my literary treasures there happens to be just one autograph of our country's late lamented poet, Edgar Allan Poe. It is a note of hand for $50, with my indorsement across the back. It cost me exactly $50.75, including protest, and you may have it for half that amount. Yours respectfully,

HORACE GREELEY.

The autograph was found among Greeley's possessions after his death.

Recalling a Mailed Letter.

After a letter is addressed and stamped and put into the mail box has the postmaster any right to give it back to the sender if sender wishes to recall it?

It is not only the right, but the duty, of the postmaster to give back a letter already mailed which the sender wishes to recall. He is even authorized in certain cases to stop the delivery of a letter which has already started for its destination by a telegram to the postmaster at that place. But he must be very, certain that the person who wishes to recall a letter in either case is the one who wrote it, and the latter must bear any expense that arises from telegraphing, etc.—St. Louis Republic.

Laws Against Elaborate Meals.

An edict of Charles IX. of France dated 1563 made it a civil offense to offer any guest more than three courses at one meal. If a fourth appeared the provider of the feast was liable to a fine of 200 francs, while the guests who partook of it could be called upon to pay the authorities 40 francs each. The unlucky purveyor was struck at still more severely, for if he took an order for a four course dinner he became amenable by law to fifteen days' imprisonment upon bread and water. If after this severe discipline upon two occasions he offended again he might be whipped and driven from the kingdom as a danger to the state.

Padded Coachmen.

In Russia it is a mark of distinction for a coachman to have a very rotund figure. The drivers of fashionable carriages appear at first to be abnormally stout. As a matter of fact this appearance, according to Burton Holmes, who made some investigations recently, is due to the skillful padding of the coachman's livery. The padding is done with cotton, and some remarkable results are obtained.

Sunset Charms.

"Oh, Mr. Chappey," exclaimed Miss Gusch, "why weren't you up on the hill to see the sunset? It was just too lovely!"

"Yaas," replied Chappey, "sent my man up to do it for me. He understands that sawt of thing, don't y' know."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Taking Him In Time.

Mr. Newlywed—By the way, dearest, did I ever tell you about that beautiful heiress who once wanted me for a husband? Mrs. Newlywed—No, dear. You have never told me a lie yet that I know of.

Must Be In.

Would Be Musician—Do you think there is any music in me? Professor—There ought to be, sir. I have heard none come out.

Everything great is not always good, but all good things are great.—Demosthenes.

Let go or die. That's the alternative of the shipwrecked man with the money bags. A great many people have a like alternative before them. Business men come to a point where the doctor tells them that they must "let go or die." Probably he advised a sea voyage or mountain air. There's an obstinate cough that won't be shaken off. The lungs are weak and perhaps bleeding. There is emaciation and other symptoms of disease, which if unskilfully or improperly treated terminate in consumption.

Thousands of men and women in a like condition have found complete healing by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

"It gives me pleasure to send you this testimonial so that some other poor sufferer may be saved, as I was, by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," writes Geo. A. Thompson, of Sheldon Ave., Chatham, Ont., Canada. "I had a cough for years, expectorated a great deal, and was slowly falling. Was losing flesh every day. Lost in weight from 150 pounds down to 128. My flesh got soft and I had no strength. Did not say anything to any one but made up my mind that the end was not far off. One day my wife was reading in the 'Common Sense Medical Adviser' about Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and I said, that sounds more like common sense than anything else that I had heard. I at once bought a bottle of your famous remedy and before I had taken half of one bottle I felt better. Took thirteen bottles and it made a new man of me. I gained sixteen pounds and never have had a cough since. I feel splendid and give all the credit to your medicine."

Given away. The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. The book contains 1008 pages, over 700 illustrations and several colored plates. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the paper-bound book, or 31 stamps for the cloth bound. Address: Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure bad, foul stomach and constipation and so help to cure nearly every disease of mankind. They regulate, tone up and invigorate Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE.

Sonoma, Sonoma County, Cal., July 15, 1905.

H. H. GRANICE, Editor.
C. C. GRANICE, Associate Editor.

Our Anniversary.

With this issue the Index-Tribune celebrates its twenty-seventh anniversary and it is truly a good time for the celebration of its sturdy existence, for recently many things have transpired and are transpiring which the Index-Tribune long hoped for and advocated. The bonding of Sonoma is one of these things. Our patrons will remember how we paved the way for this movement and schooled the public in the bond idea. Our work has at last borne fruit, and because of this we are glad of the service we have done, and that Sonoma has at last been brought to the threshold of a new prosperity.

It has been a great satisfaction to record all the new building being done in this vicinity, and to make known to the outside world that Sonoma is waking up. Wherever the Index - Tribune went, tidings of our prosperity were carried and it has been good, for "nothing succeeds like success." It has been our policy to uplift and further all public movements for the good of the town and to make those suggestions that seemed likely to result in good for everyone in the community.

We hope in the future to continue this policy and to do all we can to promote harmony in the town. We will decry knocking, but will not abstain from just criticism or comment if it be neccessary. As for the paper itself, we will make it newsy and interesting as possible and seek to keep the good will and confidence of our many patrons as we have done in the past. We will, in short, do what is right—that which will be of the greatest good to the greatest number of our people.

Preparing for Life's Work.

The highest hope a parent can have for a boy is that he will be successful in life. Too often, however, the parent has foolish ambitions for the child—foolish because the ambition is not perhaps based on any fitness or aptitude of the child for the life mapped out for him. He may become the lawyer intended and still never be a success, whereas, if the patent had studied his inclinations and spent the same amount on schooling him along these lines he would have prospered. It is too bad to make a farmer out of a lawyer, but it is worse to try and make a lawyer out of a farmer. Every parent should feel it his duty to educate his offspring up to a certain point, for education will be of as much benefit to the man who goes into trade as to the man who enters the professions. To thrust higher education, however, on the man who does not want it is nonsensical. The time and money will be wasted on him and the knowledge given him will stay with him about as long as water on a duck's back. This type of individual, however, was intended for something—if not a scholar, perhaps a saddler. The one governing his destines should ascertain this before it is too late and should not deprive the world of a good workman, nor inflict an educated fool on society. It is too bad that so many individuals are receiving educations that don't want it and still more unfortunate that hundreds with true ability never have the opportunity they should have. Many a one is toiling in a factory and will continue to be a toiler, who might win fame and wealth at the bar or in medicine or art. Economical conditions govern these things to a great extent.

Poverty makes it impossible for many to develop along the lines intended by nature for them. Poverty keeps them down, as frost the beautiful plant, and they never get a start or blossom forth as they should. There are opportunities for self improvement and some bravely struggle out of the mire of poverty, overcoming all obstacles, but too often this rugged determination is not to be found with the other higher qualification. Instead of rugged determination there is usually sick heartedness and resignation and instead of going forward and out, this type goes back and shrinks from view because of sensitiveness and pride. Where parents have means, however, to give their children a start in life, let the parents put them on the high road to success, where the best qualities will bring the best results. Let them think often of these words of Tom Fitch. "Do not deem a trade less honorable than a profession. An electrician is the peer of a preacher, and often puts more lightning into his work. A wheelwright, who mends a broken wagon is as useful as a doctor who mends a broken rib, and often the mended wagon is a good deal more useful than the mended man. A blacksmith who makes horseshoes is of greater value to the community than a lawyer who only makes trouble."

Excursions to the East at Half Fare

During the coming summer months rare opportunity will be given to visit eastern cities at a minimum expense.

Tickets will be sold by the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad at practically half the regular rates, or one fare for the round trip from California points to Denver, Omaha, Kansas City, Memphis, St. Louis, Chicago and many other points. For a slight extra cost trip may be made via Portland with a free stop-over at the Lewis and Clarke Fair.

The world-famed scenery of the Denver & Rio Grande needs no introduction to most travelers. The Canon of the Grande, the Eagle River Canon, the Canon of the Arkansas, the Black Canon of the Gunnison, the Royal Gorge, and Pike's Peak, form but a part of that glorious panorama, all of which is viewed by daylight from the new observation cars with open tops—as one passenger said, "It is just like touring in an auto."

Through sleeping cars to all principal points east.

Mr. W. J. Shotwell, General Agt., D. & R. G. R. R. Co., 625 Market street, San Francisco, will, on application, quote lowest fares, arrange sleeping car accomodations and all details of your trip, and send you free some beautifully illustrated travel books. Write today.

Weather Report

Ending July 10th: The weather has been excessively hot the past week, with stubble fires destroying many acres of feed and stacked hay on the Napa range of mountains.

Apricots are cooked on the trees. Apples and plums are sun-burned on one side and green on the other. Walnuts are cooked and leaves withered on one side of the tree. It is doubtful if our vineyards escaped injury. Never before has Sonoma valley experienced such a hot wave.

WILL AND CODICIL OF MRS. MINNA LEIDING

Remembers all Her Relatives and Some Charitable Institutions.

The will of the late Minna Leiding, widow of C. F. Leiding, who died recently in Oakland, was filed for probate in the Superior Court of Alameda county on the 6th inst. Mrs. Leiding was a pioneer resident of Sonoma and the aunt of Mr. Otto Rufus and Miss Louisa Rufus of this place, to whom she transferred by gift deed her Oakland home and contents and the Union Hotel property in this city. The will and codicil follows in extensio:

"In the name of God, amen: I, Minna Leiding, widow of the City of Oakland, County of Alameda, State of California, of the age of upwards of seventy (70) years, and being of sound and disposing mind and memory, and not acting under duress, menace, fraud or undue influence of any person whatever, do make, publish and declare this my Last Will and Testament in the manner following—that is to say:

"First—I give and bequeath to Emma Doescher, the daughter of Louise Doescher, half-sister of my late husband, C. F. Leiding, residing in the City of Bremen, Germany, the sum of two ($2000) dollars.

"Second—I give and bequeath to Friedrich Doescher, the son of the said Louise Doescher, residing in the city of Bremen, Germany, the sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars."

"Third—To each of the two sons of my said deceased husband's half-sister, Susanna Bartel, residing in the city of Bremen, Germany, I give and bequeath the sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars."

"Fourth—To the children of my deceased brother, Fritz Montigel, residing near Frieburg, in the Duchy of Baden, I give and bequeath collectively the sum of one thousand ($1,000) to be divided between and among them, share and share alike."

"Fifth—I give and bequeath to Tusnelda Heim and Elizabeth Heim, grand childchildren of my sister, Louise Hartman, residing at Blaubeuren, Kingdom of Wurtemburg, the sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars, to be divided among them share and share alike. I give and bequeath to the children of my deceased sister, Friederike Rufus, residing at Sonoma, State of California, the sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars, the same to be divided among them share and share alike. I give and bequeath to my sister, Bertha Wissel, residing in the City of San Francisco, State of California, the sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars. I give and bequeath to my sister, Auguste Toelken, residing in Alameda, State of California, the sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars."

"Sixth—I give and bequeath to Louise Weber, who resides with me in the City of Oakland, State of California, the sum of eight hundred ($800) dollars."

"Seventh—I give and bequeath to my niece, Ottillie Descheimer, residing in the City of New York, my gold watch and chain."

"Eighth—If there remain any surplus in my estate after paying all the bequeath and payments hereinbefore made and authorized, I give and bequeath such residue to the Protestant Orphan's Asylum, Grove street, San Francisco, California."

"Ninth—I have already given and conveyed my home at No. 1474 Ninth and Chester streets in the City of Oakland, and also all personal property therein, except the watch and chain hereinbefore bequeathed to my niece, Maria Louisa Rufus, by deed and bill of sale, both of which have been delivered to her, and I now desire to express my confirmation of said gift and conveyances."

"Tenth—I direct that all payments to be made in this will provided for legacies or otherwise be be made in the gold coin of the Government of the United States, and I further direct that said legacies bear no interest until one year after my death. I hereby nominate my nephews, Otto Rufus of Sonoma, California, and Albert Wissel of San Francisco, California, as the Executors of this, my last Will and Testament, without bond or bonds upon qualifying as such, or in any other proceedings in the administration of my estate; and I give my said Executors full power and authority to sell and dispose of my property, either at public or private sale, without the necessity of first obtaining permission of Court therefor.

"I hereby revoke all former Wills by me ever made."

"This Will and Testament is written by me, with my own hand, in my own house, corner of Ninth and Chester streets, Oakland, California, on May 28, 1904."

MINNA LEIDING, Widow.

Inclosed to this will is a codicil dated April 15, 1905.

"I Minna Leiding, of Oakland, California, do hereby declare the present writing to be a Codicil to my last Will and Testament, bearing date of May 28, 1904."

"First—I give and bequeath unto my niece, Bertha Wicker geb Rufus residing in San Francisco, State of California, my music box."

"Second—I bequeath unto Mrs. Fannie Shea, residing in San Francisco, State of California, sum of one hundred ($100) dollars."

"Third—I give and bequeath unto Miss Pauline Weber, residing in Tuttlingen K, Wurtemberg, Germany, the sum of one hundred ($100) dollars."

"Fourth—I give and bequeath unto Miss Louise Cheild, residing in San Francisco, State of California, the sum of fifty ($50) dollars."

"Fifth—I give to Mr. Militz, the Home of Truth, residing in Oakland, Alameda county, California, the sum of one hundred ($100) dollars."

"Sixth—I give and bequeath to the Women's Club, Sonoma, County of Sonoma, California, the sum of one hundred ($100) dollars."

Codicil dated April 15th, 1905.

EL VERANO.

By Happy Hooligan.

Frank Winrow is spending the week at the Villa.

El Verano is overcrowded and numbers of people are turned away daily.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Flanaghan returned from San Francisco last Tuesday.

John Serres of the Bellevue Hotel is in San Francisco this week on business.

Frank Young of Stockton is spending the week here and is the guest of his folks.

William Chase and Lawyer Sprague of Sonoma were in town last Friday on business.

Joe Murphy, after spending several weeks in this place, returned to San Francisco on Tuesday.

Mrs C. F. Carmer returned from Santa Rosa Saturday after spending a few days with her daughter.

Willie Britt, manager of James Edward Britt, the champion lightweight pugilist of the world, passed through here Wednesday en route to Caliente.

The masquerade ball at El Verano Villa Thursday night was a grand success. The hall was overcrowded and over fifty masked couples were on the floor. Professors Mendleson and Dillon furnished the music in an up-to-date way. Dan Toomey of the San Francisco Fire Department took the prize for being the best sustained character. He represented the constable of the town.

A baseball game was played here on Wednesday between the policemen and firemen of San Francisco. The game was very exciting and the score stood one to nothing in the eighth inning, when pitcher Dan Sylvester threw his glass arm out. Everything possible was done to put the injured arm back, but of no avail. Dan Toomey of the firemen nine had a mishap in the fifth inning. He fell while running to third base and broke his nose. Another game will be played in the near future, and base ball fans are looking forward to it as the great event of the season.

"HAPPY HOOLIGAN."

El Verano, July 14, 1905.

Death of Chas. W. Dunn

Chas. W. Dunn, after a protracted illness due to stomach trouble, died at the family home near town on Wednesday.

The deceased was born August 13, 1863. A number of brothers and sisters are left to mourn his loss. The funeral will take place today.

James O'Rouke Purchases City Hotel.

James O'Rouke, the popular young railroad man, has purchased the City Hotel from P. Loustalet. Mr. O'Rouke and his wife have many friends, and will make genial proprietors of the popular hostelry.

Mr. Loustalet, the former proprietor, will continue in the laundry business.

A Record Breaker.

The hot spell of last week was a record-breaker. There have been single days when the thermometer has registered from 100 to 110 degrees in the shade in this valley, but never before has there been a hot spell to equal that of last week

MARRIED IN SAN FRANCISCO

Miss Mary Burke Becomes Bride of F. Garside on Tuesday

Miss Mary Burke, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Burke, formerly of this place but now of San Francisco, was married on Tuesday at the family home at 420 Bartlett stteet, to F. Garside, a theatrical manager of Oakland.

Mrs. Garside has been a successful school teacher and has been in the San Francisco School Department for the past two years. She is a handsome young woman and is possessed of a most charming manner.

Mr. Garside comes of a prominent French family, and before taking up his residence in Oakland has been living in the east. He has several relatives who are very prominent in the theatrical profession.

Will Baldwin Begin Electric Road?

There is much speculation as to whether or not O. C. Baldwin will begin the construction of the electric road from here to Embarcadero. There was a $1000 guarantee that work on the road would begin in four months, and as the four months expired on the 9th of the month and no work has been done, Mr. Baldwin is liable to to have to forfeit the $1000 band. It is said, however, that Mr. Baldwin will ask, or has already asked for an extension of time to begin work, and that he really intends to build the proposed road. Messrs. Schocken and Weber still have two months in which to begin their work, and they are meanwhile awaiting Baldwin's move with interest.

Henry Raschen Passes Away

Henry Raschen, who formerly kept the Union Hotel at this place, but had since resided in San Francisco, passed away on Saturday.

Mr. Raschen was a man of many friends, and with his genial ways and business integrity, won the esteem of all with whom he came in contact. He was also a devoted family man and will be greatly missed by his loved ones. He leaves to mourn him, Mrs. G. Bowers, Mrs. Billington and Fred Raschen.

Deceased was a native of Vegesack, Germany, aged fifty-four years and six months, He was a prominent member of the San Francisco Turn Verin.

Dr. Thomson Has Purchased Automobile

Dr. Thomson has purchased an automobile, which with aid of a chauffeur he is learning to drive. The doctor finds that his increased and wide spread practice necessitates quicker mode of travel, so for that reason he purchased the machine.

The auto is a fine large touring car of recent model.

Excursion to El Campo

The schooner "Four Sisters" will leave Embarcadero at 7 A. M. sharp on Sunday, July 23rd, for an excursion to El Campo. The start will be made from the Sonoma Creek drawbridge. Those who desire an enjoyable outing on the bay should secure their tickets early as only a limited number can be accommodated. Tickets are on sale at L. S. Simmons' drug store.

Will Help Select Farm Site

Professor L. H. Bailey, head of the Agricultural Department of Yale University, will come to California shortly to help the Commission select the University Farm site. His ideas will be most valuable, and his opinions sound and unbiased.

Twenty-one counties want the farm and Fresno is said to offer the most liberal inducements to secure it.

Former Resident in Court

John Ludeman, formerly of this place, recently brought suit for injunction and damages against Carl Forestler, to restrain the latter from breaking an agreement with him not to engage in the cooperage business within a certain time. The case was heard by Judge Burnett on Monday. The $100 damages were waived and the court gave a judment for the plaintiff, granting the injunction.

Will Wed Tomorrow

Miss Pearle Rodehaver of Petaluma will be married tomorrow to Chas. Walls, also of Petaluma. Miss Rodehaver is well known here. She had charge of the millinery department of the Racket Store for some time.

GLEN ELLEN

By Aurora.

Leo Justi made a flying trip to San Frannisco Friday.

George Bremmer made a business trip to Santa Rosa one day this week.

Miss Nellie Gordenker returned to San Francisco Wednesday after a vacation here.

Professor Twight of the State University was a visitor at the Justi ranch Tuesday.

Mr. Payne and family have moved into the MacLane cottage on O'Donnell avenue.

Considerable fruit, berries and a few grapes were sun-burned during the warm spell of the past week.

Miss N. M. Davidson of Santa Rosa was reelected teacher of the Dunbar District School for the coming term.

Judge Cook's hay pressing crew has finished pressing in the valley and is now at Mr. Geo. Seaver's, up on the hills.

Sanders, the wholesale junk man of Santa Rosa, came down Monday and bought all that was left from the fire from our merchants.

The Grand Secretary of the state of the Woodmen of America, with his wife and daughter were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Froment Sunday.

Our popular postmaster and merchant, Chas. Poppe, will soon begin to rebuild. It is said that he is going to build a modern dwelling house and store.

Mr. Fay, foreman on Judge Cook's ranch, will leave on September 15th for San Francisco, where he will enter the employ of "Uncle Sam," as mail-carrier.

Helen Chekurian, the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Chekurian, who was overcome by the extreme heat last week has recovered and is able to be around again.

Mr. and Mrs. Nick Gillard went to San Francisco on Tuesday. Mr. Gillard has been suffering a great deal with his eyes of late and was obliged to go to the city for treatment.

Mr. A. M. Hardman has opened up his grocery store in the store occupied by Mr. Cobb. We are all wondering what to call the place. Is it going to be called Hardman, Cobb & Co.?

James O'Rouke, son-in-law of Mr. P. Monahan, has bought out the City Hotel at Sonoma. Mr. O'Rouke is a very popular young man and will no doubt make a success of his new undertaking.

The Brand family were tendered a pleasant surprise party on Monday evening, when about forty of our young people took them by storm. Games and dainty refreshments were indulged in until the wee small hours of morning, when the guests departed, having spent an evening long to be remembered.

AURORA.

Glen Ellen, July 14, 1905.

Hit by Croquet Ball.

Frido Clewe, who is here from Sacramento where he is in the high school faculty, met with a painful accident one day this week. Clewe was playing a game of croquet with Mr. Waters, and the latter, while driving a ball, struck it in such a way that instead of going through the wicket it flew up and struck Clewe in the face. His nose was badly larcerated and his eyes blackened.

FENCING

[Original.]

They met at a farmhouse as summer boarders. He was what women call cynical. She thought him indifferent. He was certainly a cool chap, and the three traits combined attracted her. They took long walks in the mornings and invariably seated themselves in some shady nook where instead of "dreaming the happy hours away" they discussed abstruse questions.

Several weeks passed, and there was no mention between them of their growing intimacy. He spoke of returning to his work in the city without mentioning any regret at the discontinuance of their walks or their sittings in the moonlight on the porch. She dared not mention the parting for fear her voice would tremble.

One morning after they had come in from a walk they went to the mantel in the living room, where the mail was deposited, and she, taking up a letter addressed to him in a woman's hand, gave it to him. He simply said, "Thank you." She spent the afternoon wondering who was his correspondent and surmising his action at receiving a letter from a mother, a sister, a girl friend or a sweetheart. If it were from either of the first three he would have said something to denote the fact; if from a sweetheart, he would have said no more than "thank you." This was her reasoning.

The next morning instead of waiting for him to go to walk she went alone. That is what a girl in love would usually do under the circumstances. She assumed on evidence that would have no weight with twelve jurymen—mind you, I say jurymen not jury women—that his correspondent was his fiance.

When she returned a "depot hack" was being driven up to the door and who should get out of it but the companion of her former walks, whose companionship she had taken pains to show she did not longer care for, but whose absence had made her miserable. That was not all; he handed out a very attractive looking girl, whom he led into the house. He reappeared just as the girl who had witnessed the arrival was approaching the porch. He went to meet her, pleasantly, but noticing a severe expression on her face his own assumed a serious cast. Evidently there was a change. He had been intending to explain his not joining in her walk by telling her that he had gone to the station, but he concluded to await developments.

"Pleasant walk?" he asked.

"Very."

"I didn't see you when you started."

"It is not to be expected that you should go to walk with me every morning."

"Certainly not; that would be very selfish of me. Suppose we go into the summer house."

"Thank you; I'm tired. I shall rest awhile before dinner."

"As you like. I'll stroll down to the river bank. Good morning."

This was not to her purpose. She changed her mind and said she would go into the summer house for a few minutes only.

"Why did you deliberately go off to walk without me this morning?" he asked when they were seated. He assumed that she had done this, he did not know it.

"I don't care to attract the attention of those in the house by these walks, especially"—

"Well?"

"The young lady who has just arrived might not like it."

"I hadn't thought of that."

"You should have thought of it."

"We men are methodical fellows. We take up matters as they come along, while your sex are prone to take them up as fancy dictates."

"As principle dictates."

"That word principle has many conditions. Sometimes it is rigid, sometimes elastic."

"I should think in this case it must be elastic."

"You must remember that what we call principle partakes of education. The Greeks"—

"Bother the Greeks. What had they to do with us?"

There was a brief silence. Evidently the hair splitting was over. Presently he said:

"We shall not hereafter be quite so free to enjoy these walks together, for"—

"Evidently not."

"My mother will be up on Saturday, and"—

"Oh, your mother!"

"Yes. She is an invalid, and I shall need to devote a good deal of time to her."

"And the rest will belong to another."

"What other?"

"The young lady who has already arrived."

"She will help me in the care of my mother."

"That will be her duty."

"And her pleasure."

"Certainly; of course."

"I shall be here only a few days after mother comes, then the care of her will devolve entirely on my sister."

"Your sister?"

"Yes; it is she who arrived just now."

There was another brief silence. The girl looked up at the sky, then down at the floor.

"Why didn't you tell me that before?"

"You didn't ask."

She sat silent for a moment, then arose and was about to start for the house, but he seized her hand and detained her. The fencing was over. For the first time since he had met her he said what he meant, and she replied in kind.

CHOLERA INFANTUM

Child Not Expected to Live From One Hour to Another, But Cured by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Ruth, the little daughter of E. N. Dewey of Agnewville, Va., was seriously ill of cholera infantum last summer. "We gave her up and did not expect her to live from one hour to another," he says, I happened to think of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and got a bottle of it from the store. In five hours I saw a change for the better. We kept on giving it and before she had taken the half of one small bottle she was well." This Remedy is for sale by Shoults & Co.

A number of fires were started in the hay fields of this county Monday and Tuesday by hot air balloons

Croup

Is a violent inflammation of the mucous membrane of the wind-pipe, which sometimes extends to the larynx and bronchial tubes, and is one of the most dangerous diseases of children. It almost always comes on in the night. Give frequent small doses of Ballard's Horehound Syrup and apply Ballard's Snow Liniment externally to the throat. 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

The weather the past week has been cool and pleasant.

One Dollar Saved Represents Ten Dollars Earned

The average man does not save to exceed ten per cent of his earnings. He must spend nine dollars in living expenses for every dollar saved. That being the case he cannot be too careful about unnecessary expenses. Very often a few cents properly invested, like buying seeds for his garden, will save several dollars outlay later on. It is the same in buying Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It costs but a few cents, and a bottle of it in the house often saves a doctor's bill of several dollars. For sale by Shoults & Co.

Sonoma is enjoying an excellent street-sprinkling service this season.

Cheerfully Recommended for Rheumatism

O. G. Higbee, Danville, Ills writes, Dec. 2, 1901: "About two years ago I was laid up for four months with rheumatism. I tried Ballard's Snow Liniment; one bottle cured me. I can cheerfully recommend it to all suffering from like affliction. 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

There are hundreds of summer visitors in the valley this week.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy—the Best in Existence

T. M. Wood, manager of the White County News, Beebe, Ark., is a representative southern business man who does not hesitate in expressing his good opinion of a well known remedy. He says, "It gives me pleasure to recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, having used it myself and in my family with the best results. In fact I believe it to be the best remedy of its kind in existence." Sold by Shoults & Co.

The heated spell of last week caused a big loss to the fruit-growers in Sonoma county.

With its companions, heart burn, flatulence, torpidity of liver, constipation, palpitation of the heart, poor blood, headache and other nervous symptoms, sallow skin, foul tongue, offensive breath and a legion of other ailments, is at once the most widespread and destructive malady among the American people. The Herbine treatment will cure all these troubles. 50c a bottle. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

Buy It Now

Now is the time to buy Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is ceriain to be needed sooner or later and when that time comes you will need it badly—you will need it quickly. Buy it now. It may save life. For sale by Shoults & Co.

Baseball Players and Foot Racers

Louis J Krueger, ex-champion long distance racer of Germany and Holland, writes, Oct. 27, 1901: "During my training of eight weeks' foot races at Salt Lake City, in April last, I used Ballard's Snow Liniment to my greatest satisfaction. Therefore, I highly recommend Snow Liniment to all who are troubled with sprains, bruises or rheumatism" 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

A Drink Made Null and Void.

The Sunset Magazine tells a story of the rehabilitation of the character of Johnson Sides, a noted Indian temperance orator of bygone days: One day he was caught in the act of drinking a glass of whisky and was fined. Neither Indians nor whites would listen then to his temperance speeches. Poor Johnson was in despair. One day, however, he had an inspiration. He asked Senator Doolin of the Nevada legislature to absolve his sin by act of legislature. Senator Doolin was agreeable, and introduced and carried through "Senate Joint Concurrent Resolution No. 11," which is as follows: "Resolved, By the senate, the people of the state of Nevada concurring, that the drink of whisky taken by Johnson Sides on the 17th day of September in the city of Virginia, county of Story, be and is hereby declared null and void." Thus was Johnson Sides made a good man again. He became at once a power among his own people, resumed his advocacy of the cause of water and was listened to with great respect. —Cleveland Leader.

What a Diplomat Is.

The London Pall Mall Gazette discusses the word "diplomatist," interpreting it as "one with a double duty and a double responsibility"—to his own country and the country that receives him. The evolution of "diplomatist" from the Greek verb for "to double" is very curious. "Diploma," a doubling, was specialized as a folded paper and particularly in Roman times an official passport or license. Thus "diplomatic science" down to the end of the eighteenth century meant the science of manuscripts and documents, which explains a modern writer's strange remark that "there is not a shadow of diplomatic doubt thrown over the integrity of the third gospel." Dr. Murray's Dictionary assigns the translation to the modern meaning to Leibnitz's "Codex Juris Gentium Diplomaticus" (documentary code of international law) and the title of a similar French work. "Diplomatic" came to be considered as meaning "international documentary," and then the "documentary" dropped out.

Unchanging Circus Rings.

"Circuses," said the old ring master, "have developed, evolved and changed. From the one ring of the past they have grown to three rings, plus an elevated stage, and there are many other improvements. But in one particular there has been no change since time began, and that is in the dimensions of the ring. A circus ring is always the same size—forty-two feet nine inches in diameter. Go where you will, you will never find a circus ring with different dimensions from that.

A bareback rider can ride best in a ring of this size. All riders train in such a ring and all horses are trained in such a ring. There would be trouble for horses and men if the size of the ring should be changed. It would be like changing the size of the baseball diamond, only worse." —Minneapolis Journal.

Ants' Cow Sheds.

One of the most interesting studies of insect life is the relationship between ants and plant lice, or aphids. These plant lice supply honey dew from the juices which they take as food from plants. The ants are very fond of this sweet substance and care for the aphids in a manner that seems to us surprisingly intelligent. They sometimes carry them bodily to a better feeding ground and drive away certain of their enemies. It is claimed that they even build sheds of mud in the crotches of shrubs and small trees. On account of this insect relationship one may truthfully call the ants "farmers," the aphids "cows" and these protecting mud cases "cow sheds."—St. Nicholas.

The Greatest Evil.

The Persian author Saadi tells a story of thee sages—a Greek, an Indian and a Persian—who in the presence of the Persian monarch debated this question, Of all evils incident to humanity which is the greatest? The Grecian declared, "Old age oppressed with poverty;" the Indian answered, "Pain with impatience," while the Persian, bowing low, made answer, "The greatest evil, O king, that I can conceive is the couch of death without one good deed of life to light the darksome way."

American Women's Jewels.

To the average English woman her jewelry is merely an adjunct, having no particular connection with the rest of her toilet, but added at random. Not so with the transatlantic smart woman. She dresses to her jewels and has her gowns made to match them.—London Motorist and Traveler.

Jack and Jill In Norway.

A writer on Norway says, "Our familiar nursery friends Jack and Jill are descendants of Hjuki and Bil, the ebbing and flowing tides, the tumbling crests of which, breaking one over another as the waves wash the shore, are rather aptly described in the nursery rhyme."

The Difference.

Mrs. Shopleigh—What! Pay $14.99 for a hat like that? Why, it's outrageous! Salesman—But you forget, madam, it has been especially reduced from $15. Mrs. S.—Oh, in that case I'll take it. You see, I didn't know it had been reduced.—Washington Life.

Be Sunny.

Christianity wants nothing so much in the world as sunny people. The old are hungrier for love than for bread.—Woman's Life.

Very Curious.

He—Is she really so curious? She—Curious! Why, she'd listen to advice just to find out what it was.
